

CHILDREN OF COVID BEX DAY

Curated by: Sandrine Servent

Private View: Thursday 8th July 2021, 6pm - 9pm
Exhibition: 9th - 31st July 2021

We are pleased to welcome "Children of Covid" an exhibition featuring photography by artist Bex Day. Combining 26 portraits of children with text written by the children or their parents and a film, Day's series reflects on the impact of this period of social isolation.

Following the outbreak of the Coronavirus came an unprecedented change in the way we organise ourselves both daily and socially. People everywhere had to embrace this new version of normality. Children in particular were faced with the effects of an abrupt withdrawal from school, social life and outdoor activities.

In July of 2020, photographer Bex Day lived with a friend and her 2-year-old daughter, who had begun experiencing delays in speech development due to a lack of social interaction. This inspired Day to document how Covid-19 was impacting children during the formative ages of 4 to 13.

Children of Covid explores the effect of Covid-19 on the human psyche through the unique perspective of a child developing amid lockdown. Following her last series, Seesaw, Day decided to further transgress the bounds of documentary and fashion photography, moulding the means of each genre. Styled by Day and Adam Winder, the series merges surrealism with realism; aiming to evoke moments of the Covid-19 lockdown whilst merging it with staged locations chosen in part by the children.

The photographs come accompanied by text written by each child. Together, the photograph and text work to depict the alternative reality forced upon these children by the pandemic.

Children of Covid is currently shortlisted for the British Journal of Photography's Portrait of Humanity Prize, Wolf Suschitzky Prize and the Royal Photographic Society's International Photography Exhibition 163.

The exhibition is sponsored by Blaze Image, The Graphical Tree, Desisto and it is partnered with charities Young Minds and Mind in Mind.

NOTES TO EDITORS

BEX DAY

Bex Day (b.1992) is a photographer and director from London. Well known for empowering the overlooked and underrepresented through her striking photography, Bex aims to produce playful, humorous and surreal imagery that questions the effects labelling on identity. Her portfolio constitutes an amalgamation of these themes, focusing predominantly on gender, diversity, individuality, the human condition and freedom of choice.

RAPHAEL SATKOFSKY

Raphael Satkofsky is a Los Angeles born artist working primarily within graphite and oil paint. Born to an abstract painter, Raphael has been immersed within artistic practice, thought, and community from an early age. He has studied at the University of San Francisco and Camberwell College of Art. Since 2018, Raphael's practice has combined his background in sociology with art making, allowing his work to be both a personal interpretation and distortion of the world around him. His early practice engages space and narrative as demonstrations of the way personal allegories are intertwined with historical and mythological events. Raphael uses drawing and painting as a method of investigation into social phenomena, looking specifically at the process of documentation, he interacts with image-making as a presentation of the manifold existences of life.
